

Building the Green Economy, Region by Region

How do we create good, green jobs across America? That's the question we're asking as the Good Jobs, Green Jobs Conferences are held in four regions across the country in 2012.

Conferences in Atlanta, Los Angeles, Detroit and Philadelphia will explore the extraordinary work in communities, cities and regions around the United States, reflecting the character, challenges and opportunities unique to these areas and igniting the conversation about how to realize the job-creating potential of the green economy.

Join us for the 2012 Regional Conference in your area.
